ON-LINE CATALOG

For the past few decades the Game Catalog has been published only in hardcopy form. This edition breaks with that tradition in an effort to make the information more available and searchable.

ABOUT THE AGPI

The Association for Games and Puzzles International (AGPI) has a rich history. It was founded in 1985 by Bruce Whitehill, an internationally recognized authority on games, as the American Game Collectors Association (AGCA). The organization attracted a large number of jigsaw and mechanical puzzle collectors, cutters, designers and enthusiasts and, as a result, changed its name to The Association of Game and Puzzle Collectors (AGPC). In late 2016, recognizing the change in scope and geographical outreach, the name was again changed to The Association for Games and Puzzles International. AGPI is now the world's foremost organization dedicated to research, collection, preservation and enjoyment of games, jigsaw puzzles, and mechanical puzzles. As an international, non-profit association, the AGPI is chartered to promote interest in the evolution of games and puzzles and to conduct research and explore their history from ancient times to the present.

ABOUT OUR MEMBERS

AGPI members' interests encompass all types of games and puzzles, from all eras and from all around the world. Our membership includes a broad spectrum of individuals and expertise, from interested enthusiasts to novice collectors to some of the most renowned historians, authors, designers and manufacturers of games and puzzles.

BENEFITS OF MEMBERSHIP TO GAME COLLECTORS

AGPI members collect every type of games: board games, card games and a variety of skill and action games including tiddledy winks, bagatelles and target games. Here are a few of the benefits to game collectors as members of AGPI:

- A first-class Quarterly which features articles on games and puzzles with full-color photos, in-depth research information, and advertisements for buying and selling games and parts.
- An online On the Table publication with features and articles of recent interest related to games and puzzles.

- An Annual Convention held in cities around the country and the world, featuring speakers, workshops, auctions, table selling, raffles and game playing.
- An Annual Event held in conjunction with the Allentown Toy Show every November with games, puzzles, an auction, table selling, prizes and surprises.
- Other regional meetings and events on a local level.
- An electronic database and the printed game catalog of U.S. games with known dates, variations, subsequent editions and pertinent details.
- An expansive website with information on upcoming events as well as opportunities for discussions with other members with similar interests.
- An opportunity to obtain needed game instructions or parts through the AGPI or from members' collections.
- A Membership Directory is available with a list of the members, what they collect, their research interests and their contact information.

ABOUT THE GAME CATALOG

The Game Catalog is an official publication of the AGPI. It attempts to be the most current listing of every indoor game published in the Latin alphabet from 1800 through 1960. This edition has expanded the scope to include games from around the globe. As new games and variants are discovered on a regular basis, this catalog will never be truly complete. As you discover games not listed in this catalog, or errors in the listings, please contact Charlie Gross, grosscd@aol.com, with documentation and information on your discoveries.

Determining what is and what is not an indoor game (what to include in this Catalog and what to exclude) is quite subjective. Since this edition is built upon those who have gone before me, you may find some inconsistencies. Some of the rules of thumb are for what is and what is not in the Catalog are:

- Indoor games that can be scored or have winners are included.
- Bagatelle games are included.
- Party games are included.
- Fortune telling games are included.
- Tangram type games were included in the 8th Edition and were carried forward through this edition.
- Table tennis sets are included as they were originally pictured as being played on dining room tables.
- Generic domino games are excluded but games such as Picture Dominos or Zoo Dominos are included.
- Dexterity puzzles, for the most part are excluded. Exceptions are Pigs in Clover and similar early games.
- Cube and jigsaw puzzles are excluded unless there is competition involved. Early "sliced" puzzles, such as Sliced Birds, are included from the 8th and earlier editions of the Catalog.
- Generic playing cards – poker, skat, bezique, canasta are excluded. Exceptions include games such as the Hopalong Cassidy Canasta card game.
- Generic chess and backgammon games are excluded. Exceptions include those examples that existed in the 8th Edition of this Catalog and earlier. Chess and backgammon games in combination with other games are included as well as specialty chess games such as Military Chess.
- Most generic games with no information about the manufacturers are excluded. Examples include Happy Families, games of Goose, Authors and Old Maid card games, Mah-Jongg, etc. Games with unique titles without manufacturer's information are included in the Unknown sections of each country.
- Mosaic games, craft sets, punch boards, paper dolls and construction sets are excluded.
- Large (non-table-top) billiards and pool table games are excluded.

- Coin activated games are excluded.
- Games that are exclusively outdoor games are excluded.

The Catalog was first issued in 1989, edited by AGCA member Bill Alexander, and included approximately 400 games. He produced yearly updates through the 4th edition in 1993 at which time the game count reached approximately 5,700 games.

Noted jigsaw puzzle historian, author, and collector Anne Williams then assumed the role as editor and compiled the 5th, 6th and 7th editions, all published in 1997. At that point the game total reached 7,400 games. Contributors to the early editions included: Joe Angiolillo, Bill & Betty Barnard, Sy Epstein, David Galt, Margery Griffith, Steve & Lea Horvath, Debby Krim, Bob LaFerriere, Alex Malloy, Jack Matthews, Pat McFarland, Bill Nuttig, Elizabeth Overstad, Edward Ryan, Herb Siegel, John & Mildred Spear, Susan Stock & Dave Oglesby, Bill Trent, Lindy Van Fleet, Bruce Whitehill and Blair Whitten.

The 8th edition of the Catalog, published in 1998, was edited by member Rick Tucker and totaled approximately 8,300 games. Rick also established a computer database of the listed games which he continues to maintain with inputs from AGPI members. Later editions, relied heavily on inputs from Rick's database.

After a long hiatus, AGPI members Sy Epstein and Charlie Gross, took on the task of editing a new edition with inputs from David Beffa-Negrini, Lisa Bloome, Steve Horvath, Tony Nardo, Phil Orbanes, Nic Ricketts (formerly of the Strong Museum), Rod Schar, Fred Sissan, John Spear, Dave Thomen, Rick Tucker, Bruce Whitehill, Anne Williams, and Indiana University's Lilly Library. Many games were added and dates amended based on games in collections and games viewed on auction and retailers websites, in antique malls, and at shows. The best assurance of correct information is from the games themselves. There are more than 11,900 games from 2,600 manufacturers listed the 10th Edition, compared to the 9,000 games in the 9th Edition. 1,400+ games were added from 1951 through 1960, and an additional 1,400+ games were added from 1800 through 1950 for the Tenth Edition.

In 2019, after Sy Epstein's passing, Charlie Gross continued to add games made in the U.S. and expanded the scope to include games from around the world that had titles using the Latin alphabet. Information from the collections of John Spear, Deborah Leo and David Stewart-Patterson has been added. The format has been updated and attributions have been added where known via footnotes. There are an estimated 13,500 U.S. games listed in this edition from approximately 2,750 manufacturers and approximately 11,000 non-U.S. games from 45 countries.

HOW TO USE THE GAME CATALOG

The game listings are organized by country and then by manufacturer (or publisher) in alphabetical order, including their known addresses. Brand names and/or related companies are listed along with the manufacturer's name. All attempts have been made to ascertain the copyright, patent, or production date of a listed game; otherwise an approximation is provided. Cross-references are provided with in-document links for individual games with multiple "manufacturers", i.e. separate editor, publisher, lithographer, or instruction printer's name.

Some companies used catalog numbers for their games and these are added to the listing, in parentheses, when known. Note that the catalog numbers for some companies may be roughly sequential, while those of others (e.g. Milton Bradley) are random with no correlation to date of issue and are often repeated.

Other descriptive information associated with a game may also appear in parentheses. Board games often came in rectangular boxes, typically with a length twice the width. Those sold in square boxes are noted. In addition, many games, manufactured prior to 1940, were sold with a separate board and parts box and these are designated as “b&b” in the Catalog. It should be noted that some games were produced as both full box, “fb”, and “b&b” versions and are so listed. Some games came with the playing boards either “built-in” or “built-up” in the box bottom and are played on them without removing them from the box.

Most board games into the 1950s came with wood discs (counters) or pawns as movers; plastic was substituted in later games. Other types of movers and implements, when known, are indicated in italics. Games listed as “promo” promote products from their country of origin. Other details are listed in the KEY TO NOTES & SYMBOLS found after this section.

GAME DATING

Assigning a specific date to a game can sometimes be problematic. The most reliable date is usually the copyright date that may appear on the game box, board and/or instructions. (Note at least two exceptions – Milton Bradley’s Pirates and Travelers used the copyright date of the spinner, 1914, for decades as did Copp Clark for the 1937 game Stock Ticker.) Dates shown in games books are often approximations. Unless the date shown for a game in this Catalog has a © symbol, assume it is an approximate or best guess date of the game’s introduction. Unfortunately many games were issued with no date and estimates are often made by other means, such as the first listing in the manufacturer’s catalog, the manufacturer’s business lifetime, graphics on the box and board, information on cards, and advertisements.

Games may be produced over many years with the same copyright date which can account for minor variations found during the course of the game’s production. Other variations can occur when a company has more than one factory location and games with the same date can be found with color variations and even different parts, particularly movers, included with the game.

Patent dates which might be shown on the game itself are helpful but not a reliable indication of when the game was commercially produced. For example Parker Brothers’ Monopoly and Finance games produced and copyrighted in 1935 and in 1936, respectively, carry a patent number corresponding to a 1924 date.
